Würth Philharmoniker

Since their foundation in 2017 and their first performance on the occasion of the opening ceremonies of the Carmen Würth Forum, the Würth Philharmoniker as the Orchestra in Residence there have convinced the audience with a broad repertoire ranging from classical to contemporary compositions. The orchestra is another milestone in the Würth Group's cultural commitment alongside its art activities. Claudio Vandelli has been the principal conductor of the Würth Philharmoniker since 2020.

With their powerful sound and nuanced interpretations, the Würth Philharmoniker bring music of exceptional quality to their home region of Hohenlohe, making them unique as a professional symphony orchestra in the region. In their still young biography, they have quickly earned an excellent reputation, and each season they welcome numerous renowned artists to the podium and stage in Künzelsau.

The Würth Philharmoniker also make international appearances at guest performances in major concert halls around the world. They have performed at venues including the Concertgebouw in Amsterdam, London's Cadogan Hall, the Festspielhaus Baden-Baden, the concert hall of the Ateneul Român at the George Enescu Festival in Bucharest, the Großes Festspielhaus Salzburg, the Golden Hall of the Musikverein in Vienna, and the Liederhalle Stuttgart.

In the 2025/26 season, the Würth Philharmoniker will once again present major concerts at the Carmen Würth Forum with internationally renowned soloists. Among others, it has been possible to engage François Leleux, Hélène Grimaud, Anne-Sophie Mutter, Kristīne Opolais as well as Christoph and Julian Prégardien. Additionally, there will be a reunion with Veronika Eberle, and Sir Bryn Terfel. Besides principal conductor Claudio Vandelli, renowned guest conductors frequently take the podium of the Würth Philharmoniker, including Hans-Christoph Rademann, Duncan Ward, Maurice Cohn and principal guest conductor Martin Panteleev.

Furthermore, in the 2025/26 season, the Würth Philharmoniker will perform at the Philharmonie Berlin, the Würth Haus Rorschach, the Festspielhaus Baden-Baden, in the Forum am Schlosspark Ludwigsburg and at the Liederhalle Stuttgart.
